COURTING IN CHURCH

Parlor Provided by Thoughtful Cleveland Clergyman.

In fitting up parlors in his church, the Buelld Avenue Baptist of Cleveland, where young people who have no suitable homes may meet for courting purposes, the Rev Charles A Paton is no doubt inspired by the best-matured and most commendable of motives. None but groveling minds, tainted by the commercialism of the ago, would attribute to the reverend doctor a deep-laid scheme to increase the visible supply of wedding fees in competition with his Methediat brother of the same city, who presents a handsomely bound cook book to each bride, or the Detroit clergyman who gives away trading stamps. Dr. Eaton is the paster of John D. Rockeleiler He does not have to count the pennies. Granting then, the guilelexmes of the Cleveland pastor, who does not say "Will you welk into my parlor." to the young men and maidens in any such spirit as inspired the spider in the nursery rhyme, one may still venture to doubt the brilliant success of his scheme. "Every church in the downtown section should have a courting parlor," says Dr. Eaton. "Young men and women, whom chance and circumstances have made homeless have the same proclivities for failing in love and have the same right to pleasant courtship as the more fortunate ones who live in confortable homes. I would not provide special entertainment for them. I would not preach to them. I will simply furnish a spacious church parlor where they can meet, say one evening a week."

In other words, Dr. Eaton is not going to tell the young people how to do their courting, whatever experience he may have had in years gone by He furnishes the parlor, they do the rest. In this, without doubt, he is wise. The third person at a courting party is about as appropriate and useful as a whip on an automobile. Two are company, and the addition of a well-meaning clergymen, with his heart full of love for young people, would constitute a crowd. It spoils the harmony to try to turn some duets into trios. There are reasons, however, why the courtin better scene for courting than a stuffy church paulor, with the janilor, more than likely, encoping around somewhere in the vicinity or hiding under a pew. The publicity may be greater, but after all, what is there to be ashamed of in good honest courtship. And as to klesing in public, why even Andrew Carnegie has set the seal of his approval upon the custom. The clergymen of our country are a body of earnest, thoughtful workers, ever planning for the good of others, but occasionally their zeal outrons their judgment. We believe it will be many years before the young people of the country call upon the clergy for first aid is their courting. The course of true love has never been like a park boulevard, and all the ministers in the United States can't make it any smoother—Pittsburg Gazette.

The Heavens in May.

The Heavens in May.

Mercury is morning star in Pisces and Aries, and is best seen early in the month near the date of its greatest elongation, which occurs on the 2nd. At this time he rises more than an hour before the sun and should be easy to see. Toward the end of the month he gets too near the sun to be seen with the naked eye. Venus, Mars and Jupiter are all ovening stars, and are very close together. Venus goes fastest and overtakes Mars on the 6th and Jupiter on the 11th, while Mars, which is moving more slowly, overtakes Jupiter on the 18th.

All these conjunctions are close. The one between Mars and Venus is especially remarkable, for the two planets come

A Famous Retreat.

A Famous Retreat.

The late Gen Schofield was once describing in Washington a certain retreat of cavairy.

"I call it a retreat," he said, "but I ahould really call it a rout."

He smiled.

"In this retreat," he went on, "the commanding general, as his charger tore like the wind along, turned to an aide who galloped beside him, and said:

"Who are our rear guard."

"The aide without ceasing for an instant to belabor his panting steed, replied:

"Those who have the worst horses, sir."
